The bombardment of Fort Sumter on April 12, 1861 was the opening engagement of the American Civil War. The countdown to the 150th Anniversary on April 12, 2011 is just 363 days away, as of the date of our next Round Table meeting on April 14, 2010.

President's Letter

I have been reading several battle accounts lately and it seems that the commander in charge usually felt compelled to exhort his troops on the eve of battle. Always, it would seem, in the grand tradition of Napoleon. McClellan was famous for his. I started looking for examples closer to home and I found a couple recorded in the OR that were written by Sterling Price. While not on the eve of battle they do illustrate what I mean. Let me quote excerpts from one.

This one written on the occasion of Price transferring to the regular Confederate service after Elkhorn Tavern and Shiloh.

"Soldiers of the State Guard! Veterans of six pitched battles and nearly twenty skirmishes! Conquerors in the all! Your country, with its ruined hearths and shrines, calls upon you to rally once more in her defense, and rescue her forever from the terrible thralldom which threatens her. I know that she will not call in vain. The insolent and barbarous hordes which have dared to invade our soil and to desecrate our homes have just met with a signal overthrow beyond the Mississippi. Now is the time to end this unhappy war. If every man will but do his duty, his own roof will shelter him in peace from the storms of the coming winter.

Let not history record that the men who bore with patience the privations of Cowskin Prairie, who endured uncomplainingly the burning heat of a Missouri summer, and the frosts and snows of a Missouri winter; that the men who met the enemy at Carthage, at Oak Hills, at Fort Scott, and Lexington, and in numberless lesser battlefields in Missouri, and met them but to conquer them; that the men who fought so bravely and so well at Elkhorn; that the unpaid soldierly of Missouri were, after so many victories and after so much suffering, unequal to the task of achieving the independence of the magnificent State."

A great speech intended to stir men to action. I started thinking about where this "tradition" possibly got started. Henry V prior to leading his much demoralized men into the Battle of Agincourt rose to the occasion and extolled his troops. Shakespeare recorded not the actual words but a fictional account in Act IV Scene 3 of Henry V. Westmoreland is wishing for more men from England and Henry answers him...

*If we are mark'd to die, we are enow
To do our country loss; and if to live,
The fewer men, the greater share of honour.
God's will! I pray thee, wish not one man more.
By Jove, I am not covetous for gold,
Nor care I who doth feed upon my cost;
It yearns me not if men my garments wear;
Such outward things dwell not in my desires.
But if it be a sin to covet honour,
I am the most offending soul alive.
No, faith, my coz, wish not a man from England.
God's peace! I would not lose so great an honour
As one man more methinks would share from me
For the best hope I have. O, do not wish one more!
Rather proclaim it, Westmoreland, through my host,
That he which hath no stomach to this fight,
Let him depart; his passport shall be made,
And crowns for convoy put into his purse;
We would not die in that man's company
That fears his fellowship to die with us.
This day is call'd the feast of Crispian.
He that outlives this day, and comes safe home,
Will stand a tip-toe when this day is nam'd,
And rouse him at the name of Crispian.
He that shall live this day, and see old age,
Will yearly on the vigil feast his neighbours,
And say 'To-morrow is Saint Crispian.'*

*Then will he strip his sleeve and show his scars,
And say 'These wounds I had on Crispian's day.'
Old men forget; yet all shall be forgot,
But he'll remember, with advantages,
What feats he did that day. Then shall our names,
Familiar in his mouth as household words-
Harry the King, Bedford and Exeter,
Warwick and Talbot, Salisbury and Gloucester-
Be in their flowing cups freshly rememb'ed.
This story shall the good man teach his son;
And Crispin Crispian shall ne'er go by,
From this day to the ending of the world,
But we in it shall be remembered-
We few, we happy few, we band of brothers;
For he to-day that sheds his blood with me
Shall be my brother; be he ne'er so vile,
This day shall gentle his condition;
And gentlemen in England now-a-bed
Shall think themselves accurs'd they were not here,
And hold their manhoods cheap whiles any speaks
That fought with us upon Saint Crispian's day.*

Your right it's the "Band of Brothers" speech. I have never served in the military and will never know that brotherhood. Read any soldier's memoirs and you will understand that they did and do. Please surely read Shakespeare and drew inspiration from this speech for his.

If you can make it I'll see you for Park Day 2010 at the Lexington Battlefield, 9:00 a.m. at the Visitor's Center.

Mike Calvert, President
The Civil War Roundtable of Western Missouri

Lewis-Gregg Cemetery Update

As you know, our Round Table is responsible for upkeep and maintenance of the Lewis-Gregg Cemetery. Our current Commission Chair, Dennis Myers, will be resigning this position so we are seeking a replacement. The work requires little time (mostly just driving to the cemetery to make sure things look good) as we have an excellent relationship with the man who provided our mowing. If you are interested in serving in this capacity, please contact Mike Calvert (836-1013) or Beverly Shaw as soon as possible (225-7944).

Mine Creek Battlefield Tour

Saturday, May 15, 2010

The Civil War Round Table of Western Missouri is offering a guided bus tour to the Battle of Mine Creek near Pleasanton, Kansas on Saturday May 15, 2010. The bus will have two pickup points – one at the Blue & Grey Book Shoppe, 106 E. Walnut, Independence, Missouri, at 9:00 a.m. and another at the Battle of Westport Museum at the main entrance of Swope Park in Kansas City, Missouri, at 10:00 a.m. The cost is $30 for all day to pay for transportation and admittance fees with a fast food lunch on your own, or you can bring a brown bag. Estimated time of return is 4:30 p.m. at Swope Park and 5:00 p.m. in Independence.

Our guide, Mike Calvert, President of the Round Table, will be pointing out Confederate General Sterling Price's wagon train route as we proceed south from Swope Park to the Thompson Farm near 95th and Wornall Road. The route will then take us to the Old Harrisonville Road (now Prospect) and then to Russell's Ford as we follow Grandview Road to the Santa Fe Trail crossroads at about 105th Street. Continuing south we cross the Blue River at Red Bridge to go to Little Santa Fe (or New Santa Fe). We will be able to see wagon ruts (swales) at Minor Park before going south to Santa Fe Road and then State Line Road to 135th Street where we will stop for lunch. We will be following the Leavenworth-Fort Scott Military Road which crisscrossed between Kansas and Missouri. We will follow Holmes Road through Drexel and Merwin to West Point where there was an encampment. As we go back into Kansas we will have a comfort stop near the Marais des Cygnes massacre and then on to the Battle of the Mounds and the town of Trading Post. We estimate arrival at the Mine Creek Battlefield museum at about 2:00 p.m.

The Battle of Mine Creek was the finale of Confederate Gen. Sterling Price's raid into Missouri in the fall of 1864. He entered Missouri from Arkansas on September 19, 1864. His first objective was St. Louis, but after suffering heavy losses at Pilot Knob on September 27th, he turned his 12,000 horsemen west where he met Union troops at Lexington on October 19th. He had a brief delay in Independence before heading to Westport on October 23rd where he was not able to break Union General Curtis' lines and turned south with Union infantry and cavalry on his heels. In a large cavalry battle on October 25th at Mine Creek, Price lost more than 1,000 men and had to abandon a huge wagon train of supplies which his troops purposely destroyed. For all practical purposes, the Civil War in the West was over.

Reservations may be made by sending a check payable to "CWRTWM," 17313 E. 51 Terr. Ct., Independence, MO 64055. The cost is $30 per person with lunch on your own. Please include a contact phone number and whether you will join the tour in Independence or Swope Park in Kansas City. In order to reserve a tour bus, we must have reservations by April 20, 2010. For more information call Beverly Shaw at (816) 225-7944.

Why Jefferson Barracks?

You may wonder why Governor Nixon chose Jefferson Barracks as the site for his signing an order establishing a new Missouri Civil War Sesquicentennial Commission. You may also wonder why the Civil War Round Table of Western Missouri is planning a weekend trip to Jefferson Barracks September 18-19, 2010 (more information to follow).

As a military post – the Army's first permanent base west of the Mississippi – Jefferson Barracks was the original destination of tens of thousands of new soldiers over the years. Now, it is perhaps best known for its national cemetery. The site also houses a Veterans' Administration hospital, an Army National Guard base, and two county parks. But the hodgepodge area lacks a clear definition of boundaries and can be confusing to visitors. That's why we are going to have Marc Kollbaum be out step-on guide to get an overview of Jefferson Barracks before we visit the Powder Magazine Museum.

Some future Civil War leaders who served at Jefferson Barracks were Robert E. Lee, Ulysses S. Grant, Jefferson Davis, and William T. Sherman. During our visit to Jefferson Barracks we plan to have a hard hat tour of the Missouri Civil War Museum. Later in the day we will visit the President Grant Historic Site and Home. There is even an idea to build a Grant presidential library at Jefferson Barracks although the Grant papers have recently been transferred to Mississippi.

In an Associated Press article of March 26, 2010, it was said that attendance at Missouri's state parks and historic sites rose by nearly 1 million last year after a decade of decline. Nearly 16 million people visited Missouri parks and historic sites, a 6 percent increase from 2008, which might be attributed to the economy.

Connection between Mark Twain and U. S. Grant

From the Bushwhacker publication of the Civil War Round Table of St. Louis we learn that as a part of the annual statewide reading program in celebration of the Mark Twain Centennial, the Ulysses S. Grant National Historic Site will host George Frein as Mark Twain on Sunday, April 25, 2010 at 1:00 p.m. Twain and Grant became friends in the 1870s, and it was Twain's company that published Grant's Memoirs. Written while Grant was fighting cancer that would take his life on July 23, 1885, the Memoirs became the biggest seller of the time, providing Mrs. Grant with royalties of nearly $500,000.

On March 21, 2010, Scott Ditzler of the Kansas City Star interviewed author Roy Morris Jr. who has written a new book which traces Samuel Clemens' Western adventures and his evolution into Mark Twain. Morris is the editor of Military Heritage Magazine as well as the founding editor of America's Civil War magazine, and is a regular consultant to the History Channel and A&E network. He refers to Twain as "the reluctant confederate." He says that when the Civil War started, Twain was working as a riverboat pilot, and the war shut down the river traffic for commercial vessels. Twain was afraid he would be drafted into either the Union or Confederate navy and be forced to pilot a gunboat. He got talked into joining a Confederate cavalry unit called the Marion Rangers who spent two or three weeks wandering around the countryside dodging what they thought was the entire Union army, but they never actually fought a battle. That's when Twain decided he wasn't cut out to be a soldier. When his brother, Orion, showed up and said he'd received a political appointment as secretary to the governor of the Nevada Territory, Twain took the opportunity to go west with him.

Lutheran Pastor's Civil War Diaries

We were glad to receive from Len Eagleburger an E-mail copy of The Lutheran Witness publication of June-July 2009 which outlined a recent find at the Concordia Historical Institute. It was six of Rev. F. J. Blitz's diaries which include a volume for each of the Civil War years. These slim, bound volumes document a remarkable story of German Lutheran immigrants who abhorred slavery, but ironically founded one of the Lutheran Synod's oldest congregations in the heart of one of Missouri's staunchest slave-owning counties. You may remember that our Round Table took a daytrip to Concordia, Missouri in Lafayette County several years ago. We found that secessionist raiders regularly targeted the German Lutherans for violence. On October 11, 1864, the diary entry is "Buried 13 in our graveyard."

If you would like to have the full text of the article e-mailed to you or a photocopy sent by mail, please contact Beverly Shaw at (816) 225-7944 or bevjshaw@hotmail.com.

Quantrill Special Collections Research

Richard Stewart visited the Round Table meeting in March and outlined his ambitious project of providing research opportunities at the Gentry Library in Gentry, Arkansas. He has found that many of the Quantrill men ended up in Arkansas so he is collecting books and research data to donate to the library. He has gotten a good response from those willing to donate written materials, but he needs some financial help to continue making copies from microfilm at the Midwest Genealogy Library. If you would like to make a donation, you can send a check to Richard L. Stewart, 120 East Walnut, Independence, MO 64050. If you would like more information about his efforts, you can go to www.quantrillsguerrillas.com and scroll down to IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT written by Paul Petersen, a Quantrill author.

Missouri Honors George Caleb Bingham

The February 17, 2010 issue of the Examiner revealed that George Caleb Bingham, 19th century painter and politician, has been added to the Hall of Famous Missourians and a bronze bust is now on display in the third floor rotunda of the Capitol in Jefferson City.

Regionally, Bingham is known for his famous painting "Order No. 11" which depicted the devastation of rural residents of Jackson, Cass, and Bates counties and part of Vernon County who were Southern Sympathizers and ordered out of their homes which were looted and burned in 1862. Recovery took years.

Bingham is best known in Independence, Missouri for his home at 313 W. Pacific Avenue. On May 15, 2010 from 5-8 pm the Bingham-Waggoner Estate presents its second annual mystery dinner theatre. The year is 1864 and Bingham is hosting a grand party. He has invited the entire crew of the steamboat Cherokee Belle which is docked at the Westport Landing to come entertain his guests with a wonderful stage show filled with music, dancing, and frivolity. There will be an array of food, drink, and fun-filled games (and perhaps even a little melodrama). Tickets for the evening are $45 and must be reserved in advance by calling Shireen McLaughlin at (816) 461-3491.

For the youngsters the Examiner published Chapter 8 from "Colorful Characters" by Kay Hively with the story of George Caleb Bingham followed by Things to Think About and Do.

Raytown Historical Day Bus Trip

The Raytown Historical Society is offering an historical trip north on Wednesday, May 19, 2010 from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The destinations are Watkins Mill State Park which includes the Watkins Home, the Woolen Mill, and the Octagonal School and Church followed by the Jesse James Farm Home and Museum, the Historic Liberty Jail, and a drive through William Jewell College. The cost is $55 which includes a catered lunch. The deadline is April 19 by sending your check to the Raytown Historical Society, P. O. Box 16652, Raytown, MO 64133.

Notes about Members and Friends

Congratulations are in order for two of our affiliated historical groups. The National Frontier Trails Museum at 318 W. Pacific in Independence is celebrating 20 years of being a museum, interpretive center, and research library on Saturday, April 10, 2010 from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Our colleagues of the Civil War Round

Table of the Ozarks are celebrating 50 years on April 17, 2010, in Springfield, Missouri, and Mike and Cindi Calvert plan to represent us at this special event. Mike also plans to see Connie Langum at Wilson's Creek National Battlefield to complete some revisions to our National Register nomination for the Little Blue Battlefield. From the Republic Monitor of March 24, 2010, we learn that the school board has decided to capitalize on Republic's unique tie to Wilson's Creek by re-naming it's elementary schools after a general who fought in the battle such as Schofield, McCulloch, Lyon, and Price. Once the transitions are complete, the Battlefield will provide a plaque which highlights the accomplishments of each general.

April 10, 2010 is also the big day for Nancy Hitt, our Kentucky friend, who has arranged for a marker to be dedicated at Springhill Cemetery at Harrodsburg, KY for six of Quantrill's men who were killed in Kentucky in 1865. Nancy was honored by the Quantrill Society with the first James H. Wakefield Award at the 2009 Reunion. Vicki Beck was also honored with the James Hale Award. She was a founding member and served on the Executive Board for many years. She was instrumental in placing the monument at the Morgan Walker Family Cemetery in Blue Springs, Missouri.

We were glad to meet Mary Potter at our March meeting. She is president of the Blue Springs Historical Society and came as a guest of Barbara Hughes who will present the program at their annual meeting in April.

We want to congratulate the schools of Independence, Missouri for their emphasis on a quality education and mentoring by caring adults. Don Ross was honored as a 15 year veteran of the YouthFriends organization in March, 2010. YouthFriends is the school based mentoring program which brings community volunteers into schools. In his letter to the editor of the Examiner on March 11, 2010, Lou Harms pointed out that the Truman High School girls basketball team finished a successful season and that all the varsity girls are on the "A" honor roll. He said that it was encouraging to witness a group of young ladies who have chosen to aim high and to achieve excellence. Speaking of excellence, the Rotary Club of Independence recently honored two students of the month at Chrisman High School, and one is Brittany McQuain, the niece of Connie McQuain. Way to go, ladies.

Missouri Governor Jay Nixon's News Release - April 2, 2010

ST. Louis, Mo. - Standing at Jefferson Barracks, the historic former military post where future Civil War leaders Robert E. Lee, Ulysses Grant, Jefferson Davis and William T. Sherman once served, Gov. Jay Nixon today signed an executive order establishing a new Missouri Civil War Sesquicentennial Commission.

The Governor has appointed ten Missourians to serve on the Sesquicentennial Commission:

Robert Archibald, of St. Louis, president and CEO of the Missouri Historical Society;

J. Kent Emison, of Higginsville, who serves on the parks board of that city, which is home to the Confederate Memorial State Historic Site and which is near the Battle of Lexington State Historic Site;

Smallin Civil War Cave Opens For Tours

Right here in the middle of Christian County is a hidden treasure. People have heard of it, many have seen the mouth of it and others have been fortunate enough to explore it. But now, after more than 40 years of being closed to the public, Ozark's Smallin Civil War Cave is open for tours.

"As you walk around the corner of that big collapsed valley and see that big entrance (to Smallin Cave) you just feel like you're in another world. It's very unusual looking," said cave owner Wanetta Bright. "I'm absolutely inspired by it."
